The city of Detmold and the company name Neitz had been well known for industrial oven manufacturing and supplier for automotive and emballage industry for more than 50 years. Caused by economic changes in the early nineties they closed down business.

Foundation of sellacan

The know-how in oven construction, collected during decades, was threatened to get lost, when Mr Dietmar Raupach and some experienced alumni of Neitz took a chance to start again in March 1996:

Company „sellacan“ was founded! This name is to be understood as a product related word play, the German term “verkauf eine Dose” turned to „sell a can“.

Subsequently the following steps lead into metal packaging industry, especially the area of drying of sealants for glass closures. For this application, by now more than 250 mesh belt ovens have been delivered to six continents!

Continuous growth and technological development

In the further course sellacan added the field of brazing technology with different furnace lines for brazing of aluminum heat exchanger.

In the past years, sellacan has achieved a unique selling proposition almost worldwide with its Batch type Brazing furnaces, specially developed for the segment industrial heat exchangers or small-scale productions.

As yet, in 100 projects customers decided for sellacan furnaces to braze aluminum heat exchangers.

The range of supply was completed by incorporating tempering furnaces particularly for heat treatment of crankshafts.

Whether in Germany, Brazil, USA, Russia, China or Vietnam, crankshafts are heat treated in a sellacan-Oven.

Global players like Volvo, SCANIA, BMW or VW are in the meantime part of sellacan clientele.

Dedication and motivation of all those involved lead to success and growth, so that a new building with following expansion at the location in Lage became necessary. Today sellacan is a well-positioned midsize company.

With regard to trendsetting technologies like electric mobility we are developing new designs of our systems for changing applications and demands of our customers and face economic and technical change with innovative produces.

With Heart and Soul

Occupational lifework and pride of Mr Raupach is the establishment of a distribution system and a reliable international network, which also allowed sales during economic crises and secured the company's survival.

sellacan offers its customers the complete package from consulting and planning to design, manufacturing and assembly.

All key components as well as external service providers have been brought together, forming a competence team to have the professional expertise clustered.

This also includes the practice-oriented training of our junior employees.

„Together we´re strong!“

In order to provide also mechanic and electro technical installation and start-up Works or service and maintenance after having sold a line, a service system was established. By this network customer's requirements can be short termed executed under consideration of country-specific standards.

Outlook

In order to cope with the necessity of internationality and globalization, ways and forms of management off the beaten path are searched.

First actions have been taken in 2018, also to have sufficient time with regard to a proper transfer of company management at a future age-related retirement of Dietmar Raupach.

Not everything went smooth in the past, and we couldn't as well measure up to everybody's expectations – this claim can unfortunately not be realized in business life. But, summing up we can rightly say, that the 25 years sellacan-story has been and already is successful. We can proudly point to more than 600 projects all over the world!

We would like to express our sincere thanks for cooperation to our customers, business partners, suppliers and last but not least our dedicated employees. Together with you we will face the coming challenges!

Unfortunately the planned anniversary celebration has to be postponed due to the continuing Corona pandemic. A date will be timely announced on our homepage, and we want to cordially invite you already now to this celebration.
